Chairs and Coffetables by Nina Mair for LaCividina

Bernard, a composable collection of minimal and versatile shapes

24/07/2020 - The elegant collection of Bernard chairs and tables takes shape from the design of a single armchair and inaugurates the collaboration between Nina Mair and LaCividina. The project is in fact born from an independent lounge chair, designed to live alone or in a plurality of modular elements, able to respond to the furnishing needs of large collective spaces.

Bernard, LaCividina

A characterizing element of the Bernard armchair is the versatility of the backrest and single armrest. These identical and essential modules can vary their function depending on the direction you want to give to the seat. The two vertical, upholstered elements take up the shape and volume of the seats creating the impression that the two soft cushions are simply resting on the seating surface. The filigree powder-coated steel frame of the seating modules can also be recognized as base of the side table, which is available in two dimensions: wider for complex compositions, smaller to accompany the single armchair. The table-top is customizable through a choice from a variety of MDF finishes.

The Bernard collection was designed as furnishing for compact environments– such as hotel rooms – where the lounge chair that allows two seating directions, facilitates an optimal use of the available space. For large lounges and smart offices, on the other hand, one can create original compositions, achievable thanks to the different conformations of the armchair: with a single armrest, double or without armrests, combinable with a pouf, a dormeuse and two or three-seater sofa options.
